Three die in two unrelated accidents on "Bloody 27" during the New Year holiday

Two more people were killed and two others were seriously injured last Wednesday afternoon on the notorious two-lane stretch of U.S. 27 known as "Bloody 27" between South Bay and the Broward County line.

Their southbound cars were hit head-on by a northbound tractor-trailer that drifted across the center line about 14 miles south of South Bay.

The deaths brought the Palm Beach County death toll for 1992 to 164.

Almost exactly 24 hours later and 20 miles north, a Clewiston boy died when he was thrown from the car his mother was driving when she swerved to avoid a collision and her car overturned, landing atop him and crushing him.

In the Wednesday accident, tractor-trailer driver Willie M. Murrah, 51, of Athens, Alabama, crossed into the southbound lane of U.S. 27 with his northbound truck and struck three vehicles, killing the drivers of two of them.

Nancy P. Shockey, 40, of Miami, was killed when Murrah's truck hit her 1991 Thunderbird, crushing the driver's side. Patrick A. Wilson, 39, of Key Largo, died when the truck hit his 1991 Chevrolet. Passengers in both cars were hospitalized.

Death takes a holiday...and turns it into a nightmare for friends and family members. Here, Paramedics tend to two of the victims of Wednesday afternoon's head-on crash involving a northbound tractor-trailer and three southbound vehicles, as a third is loaded into the rear of the ambulance. Florida Highway Patrol Troopers said the truck driver was distracted and let his truck drift into the southbound lane, where it knocked an airport trailer loose from a Chevrolet van driven by Morris Barnes, 54, of Pembroke Pines, and lost its left front wheel as a result. The truck continued north in the southbound traffic and hit two cars head-on, killing the drivers of both. Dead are Nancy P. Shockey, 40, of Miami, and Patrick A. Wilson, 39, of Key Largo. Ms. Shockey was driving the Thunderbird above. Passengers in both cars were injured. The driver of the tractor-trailer, Willie M. Murrah, 51, of Athens, Alabama, received minor injuries. His truck ended up in the shallow canal west of U.S. 27.

Payless Shoe Store robbed at gunpoint

By BRENDA BUNTING
SUN Editor

Police are looking for a second suspect in the January 30 robbery of Payless Shoe Store in Belle Glade.

Two men robbed the store, located at 172 West Avenue A, about 10 p.m. and stole four bank bags from the employees.

According to the employees, they were locking the front door when two men armed with guns rushed in and forced them back into the rear of the store. The men made them lie on the floor and took one of the employees to the front of the store where she was made to hand over the four bank bags which contained an undisclosed amount of cash.

The two gunmen then fled from the store and an employee called police. When Officer T.E. Murphy arrived, a bystander told him that two men had just robbed the store and were fleeing toward the S.W. 4th Street area in the alleyway to the rear of payless.

The officer saw one of the suspects, later identified as Michael Santos, 22, of 8 Everglades Street, in the alley. Santos ran behind Glades

SFWMD agrees to pay legal fees for Sugar League lawsuit

The South Florida Water Management district has agreed to pay $31,078 under the public records act to cover the legal fees of the Florida Sugar Cane League in seeking public records about the Everglades Settlement Agreement that had been kept secret by the District.

The fees were part of a stipulated settlement agreement in a lawsuit filed by the Sugar Cane League in Palm Beach County Circuit Court against the District under Florida's Public Records Act. It sought records the District withheld which purportedly contained information about the scientific basis of the Everglades SWIM plan settlement agreement between the state and the federal government which had been negotiated in secret.

The public records lawsuits were filed to learn if, in fact, the state had any scientific basis for requiring nutrient reductions lower than rainfall and for flooding 58 square miles of farm land to build massive water treatment areas. The records finally turned over to the League revealed no scientific basis for the Everglades plan.

"Government secrecy always leads to public mistrust," said Robert Buker, senior vice president of United States Sugar Corporation. "In this case, representatives of both the Water Management District and the State of Florida knew they had a very weak scientific case to support their plan which would put 38,000 people out of work, would cost over 500 million dollars and yet would fail to accomplish its intended goal of improving the Everglades."

"As this plan is subjected to more scientific inquiry and See Public records, page 3

Barracks formerly used to house cane cutters in South Bay may be rebuilt into single family homes.

Sugar Cane Growers Cooperative has agreed to sell the dormitory facility and 3.76 acres of land, located at the southern end of 10th Street, to Zimmerman Development Services Corporation for $320,325.

The corporation, in a co-venture with New Day Outreach Centers, Inc. will construct homes, qualify buyers and provide Housing and Urban Development insured mortgages to low and moderate income families in South Bay.

In all, 50 units will be developed. Thirty-eight will be two story row houses constructed within the confines of the existing structures. They will be three bedroom, two bath homes and eight units will be single level courtyard homes specifically designed to meet the needs of the physically handicapped. They will have two bedrooms and two baths.

Four units will also be constructed and will be used by New Day Outreach Centers, Inc. as transition housing units.

George Zimmerman, owner of Zimmerman Development, asked South Bay city officials Tuesday night for their approval of the plan and help in applying for Community Development Block Grant money to purchase the property.

"I think it's a fantastic idea," said Mayor Clarence Anthony. "This project, because of its private ownership, will bring the ad valorem taxes up for the city."

Developers hope to have the funding and develop the site by February of 1994.

Police searched the car and found the four bank bags, a .38 caliber Derringer loaded with an armor piercing bullet and a novelty type disguise.

Santos was caught and taken to the Belle Glade Police Department. He was charged with armed robbery to a business, armed robbery, two counts of grand theft, person engaged in criminal offense having a weapon, possession of armor piercing projectile and loitering and prowling.

Feud ends with shots fired - but no injuries

Two men who had been feuding for three weeks ended their fight in gunfire January 30. Belle Glade police officers were called to the 700 block of S.W. Avenue E last Wednesday in reference to a shooting incident.

Their investigation revealed that McArthur Glaze, 19, of 295 S.W. 9th Avenue, South Bay, had fired shots at Albert Willis, 19, of 300 N.W. 14th Street, Belle Glade.

Officers learned the two men had been in an argument about three weeks ago and when they met again Wednesday, Glaze allegedly shot at Willis with a 30-30 caliber rifle. Willis was not injured in the shooting.

Glaze was arrested and charged with aggravated assault, person engaged in a criminal offense having a weapon and possession of a firearm by a convicted felon.

He was arrested and placed under a $3,000 bond. The 30-30 caliber rifle was recovered.

Accidents

The third vehicle involved was a Chevrolet van driven by Morris W. Barnes. Mr. Barnes was pulling an airboat on a trailer behind the van and the airboat trailer was the first thing the northbound tractor-trailer hit.

In the Thursday accident, Henry Darrell Trahan, 7, was killed when his mother, Connie Marie Hartstuf, 29, tried to avoid another northbound car about 2 miles north of Lake Harbor.

When the car overturned, other motorists stopped and tried to lift it from the boy.

He was taken by ambulance to Glades General Hospital where he was pronounced dead on arrival.

His death brought to 165 the number of people killed on Palm Beach County roads in 1992. He was the last person killed on the county's roads in 1992.

The two deaths Wednesday were the eleventh and twelfth of 1992 on the remaining two-lane stretch of U.S. 27 south of South Bay to the Broward County line.

Seventy-two people have died on that stretch of U.S. 27 in the past ten years.

Work is continuing on widening the remaining 22 miles.

The Sugar Cane League filed the suit in July, 1991. On June 22, 1992, after a Tallahassee court had ordered the Florida Department of Environmental Regulation to turn over similar records it had withheld from the public, the Water Management District voluntarily released the documents

In the Tallahassee case, the court ruled that Secretary of DERM Carol Browner had improperly withheld public documents about the scientific basis for the Everglades cleanup.

The documents were part of the secret negotiations between the state and the federal government to create an Everglades cleanup plan as settlement of a lawsuit brought by the federal government which claimed the Everglades park was being endangered by runoff from farms south of Lake Okeechobee.

Wants to see taxes cut

Before the City of Belle Glade raises taxes, why don't they really go through and why doesn't the City Commission go through the budget and cut ALL the fat out - not some of it, but really get down to work and cut out all the fat out of the city budget. Place of raises' taxes, they can cut taxes.

Thinks Recreation Department needs to pay more attention to Lake Shore Park

I'd like to express my feelings, and make my point to the recreation department, Michael Underwood and J.D. Patrick.

They run a recreation program and the kids had a banquet the other night and the expressions on the kids' faces was very, very joyful.

It was bad that the recreation department runs a program when such things like that happen and no one comes out to see what was going on, how the program was run, and for

Mike Underwood to be a very important person in recreation.

I think he should take more consideration of being around both parks and we're over Lake Shore Park.

And I'd like to express that feeling that he needs to show more concern about Lake Shore Park because we as parents love to see the kids with a joyful smile on their face.

Please respond to that. Thank you.

Editor's note: We asked Michael Underwood, Recreation Director to respond to this Speak Out.

He said the event referred to by this caller was a private banquet sponsored by an individual group and not by the City of Belle Glade. He said the city just purchased, through a $4,000 grant, equipment for football at Lake Shore Park and has ordered game jerseys, four new basketball rims and a time clock for the park.

He said city personnel are very supportive at Lake Shore Park, but he would check into the complaint and see if they could improve.

Letters to the editor

Make a new New Year's Resolution

Dear Editor,

Most people think of New Year's resolutions as things you stop doing: to stop drinking, to stop smoking, or to stop eating too much. Sometimes, however, the best resolutions are ones to start doing something that will improve yourself, or to help someone else.

A great way to improve your world or someone else's is through the written word. By learning to read and write, or by teaching someone to read and write, you will open up the world of written language and countless dreams along with it.

The Glades Literacy Project, which serves the South Bay, Belle Glade, Pahokee and Canal Point area, is here to serve a desperate need in this community: to ensure that every adult in the Glades can read and write.

This goal, however, is impossible without the support and participation of all of you. The students and tutors in this program are what makes it a real part of this community; otherwise the Glades Literacy Project would just be an impressive-sounding name on my business card.

It is often said that children are our best hope for our future. But we should not abandon today's non-readers by putting all our enthusiasm and talent into the next generation, believing they will miraculously solve our nation's problems.

This not only completely disregards the best potential of adult non-readers, but also adds to the growing problem of illiteracy in this nation. Like the deficit, the illiteracy problem of this country will only get bigger if left to the next generation to cure. Also, children learn by example, so unfortunately illiterate parents tend to raise illiterate children.

The Glades Literacy Project, over the past two years, has made slow but steady progress. We currently have 31 active student-tutor teams, but we always have more students who are waiting for help.

So if you know someone who needs help, or are willing to help someone else, start the new year right and give us a call at 996-3453 for more information.

It's one resolution you'll find hard to break.

HOW FEDERAL MANDATED HEALTH-CARE INSURANCE WOULD HURT THE POOR

The media have widely reported that some 37 million Americans are without health insurance. Surprisingly, few people have questioned these numbers, or resisted the knee-jerk reaction that more government effort is needed to assure the availability of affordable health care for the poor.

The reality, however, is that the "health insurance problem" is not nearly as critical as has been reported and, in fact, government proposals to mandate employer-provided health insurance coverage will likely do more to harm than to help both the working poor and the non-working poor.

Although there are millions of Americans without health insurance at any given time, this is usually due to the temporary circumstance of job changes. Very few people actually remain uninsured for long. In fact, the Joint Economic Committee of Congress recently estimated that the number of chronically and involuntarily uninsured may be only 5.25 million—the target group that mandates health insurance presumably would help. But would it really?

The Kennedy-Mitchell proposal introduced in the last Congress is typical of the approach to health insurance being considered by the federal government and by various state legislative bodies. It would have mandated that all employers either provide their workers with health insurance, or pay a tax penalty for each worker that could be used to finance publicly provided health care.

Such proposals are rationalized as a compassionate response to the plight of the poor. Unfortunately for the poor, however, economic realities have not been taken into consideration.

Political rhetoric to the contrary, mandated health insurance is no "free lunch" for workers since it would essentially be paid by employees themselves, not their employers. By substituting health insurance coverage for monetary compensation, employers can reduce their costs and, at the same time, offer workers a compensation package that is more attractive overall. In essence, workers "purchase" health insurance from their employers by taking lower wages in return for coverage.

A recent study by economists Jonathon Gruber and Alan Krueger estimated that approximately 86 percent of the cost of mandated health insurance would be passed on to workers. If government mandates force employers to provide, or increase, health insurance, much of the cost of this "extra" compensation expense will most definitely be passed on to workers through reduced wages (or through reduced growth in wages).

Also consider that the reason many low-wage workers are not presently covered by health insurance on the job is that they are not, in effect, willing to pay for it through reduced wages.

Heart disease is number 1 killer of women

Think of the No. 1 killer disease of American women, and you probably think of cancer.

Think again.

Heart disease has that deadly distinction. And these heart-killing facts prove just how deadly it is.

• Heart and blood vessel diseases combined kill more than 600,000 women a year, while all forms of cancer kill nearly 227,000.

• Heart attack claims about 245,000 women's lives a year, lung cancer about 46,000.

• More than 90,700 women die of stroke yearly, and about 42,000 die of breast cancer.

And if you think heart disease is only a man's disease, statistics destroy that long-held myth, too. More men may have heart attacks, but women are twice as likely to die from them within the first few weeks. And women are more likely than men to have a second heart attack during the first four years after the initial one.

True, the statistics are gloomy, but the forecast is getting brighter. As Lester Baird, president of the American Heart Association, Glades division, says: "That's mainly because of medical advances and changing lifestyles."

From 1979-87, age-adjusted death rates for women declined 20 percent for coronary heart disease, 26 percent for stroke, and more than 14 percent for all cardiovascular diseases.

So think prevention. Learn about your risk factors -- and which ones you can control.

Some risk factors cannot be changed. These are:

Age -- The older you get, the more likely you are to develop heart disease.

Sex -- More men have heart disease and develop it earlier than women. But women narrow the gap after menopause.

Race -- Cardiovascular death rates of black women are much higher than those of white women. That may be mainly because of higher blood pressure levels.

Hereditary -- If your close blood relatives had heart disease, you're more likely to develop it. You can control these risk factors:

Smoking -- It's the most preventable cause of death and the most significant risk factor for heart attack. Cigarette smoking puts extra strain on and causes temporary changes to your heart. It also causes a shortage of oxygen in your heart.

Women smokers are more than twice as likely as non-smoking women to have a heart attack. And women smokers increase their risk of heart attack and stroke even more when they use oral contraceptives.

So if you don't smoke, don't start. Quit if you do.

High blood pressure -- Blood pressure is the force exerted by the heart when it pumps blood through the arteries. It's too high if you have a series of readings over 140/90. The first number, called systolic, is the pressure while your heart beats

This is certainly a rational choice for those low-wage workers who already have health care coverage through another member of their family. But choosing another purchasing health insurance from an employer is no less rational even for workers who are poor and are not covered by another family member.

That's because many in this group already receive, at no expense to them, health care benefits through public and private agencies. For example, according to the Congressional Budget Office, such uninsured workers annually receive some $15 billion in health care for which they pay nothing.

It's hard to see, therefore, how the working poor would be better off with mandated health insurance which, in reality, would make them pay for medical care they now receive free of charge.

Of course, many people without health insurance are the non-working poor. The Kennedy-Mitchell legislation also would, supposedly, make more money available to provide health care for them. But, again, a careful examination shows that mandated health insurance would likely do more harm than good for this group as well.

The reason is that, with mandated health insurance, the poor who are currently unemployed would be even more likely to remain so.

Mandating that employers provide health coverage for everyone would reduce the profit in hiring entry-level, low-skilled workers for jobs that are not worth more than the minimum wage.

A March 1992 study by the Joint Economic Committee of Congress estimated that more than 1.2 million jobs would be lost within one year of enactment of mandated health insurance legislation.

The jobs lost would be the very ones offering the best opportunity for the unemployed poor to get on at first rung of the employment ladder.

At the same time that such proposals would likely lead to reduced employment opportunities for non-working poor, any additional money available for public health care would likely expand the number of non-poor people eligible for such subsidies which, again, would hurt the truly needy.

More government controls and mandates will not lower the cost of, or improve the quality of, health care. The claim by advocates of such plans that compassion for the poor demands such action is not a valid one.

Those who are truly concerned about the plight of the poor and who have some awareness of likely economic trade-offs will recognize that mandated health insurance is the wrong way to approach the health care issue.

or contracts. The second, diastolic, is the pressure in the arteries while your heart is filling and resting between beats.

So have your blood pressure checked often. You can help control it by eating a healthful diet, exercising regularly and limiting how much sodium you use. You also may need to take medicine.

High blood cholesterol -- Cholesterol is a fat-like substance found in human and animal tissue. The higher your blood cholesterol level, the more likely that fats and cholesterol will build up in your artery walls. This process is called atherosclerosis. It slows blood flow or blocks off blood vessels completely, causing either a heart attack or stroke. Get your blood cholesterol level checked by a health professional. If your level is too high, your doctor can help you control it.

Other risk factors contributing to heart disease include alcohol, diabetes, high blood triglycerides, obesity and perhaps stress. Recent studies suggest that new oral contraceptives with lower doses of estrogen are safer than the high-dose pills that increase the risk of heart disease. The good news is that you can control all of these factors.

So think of heart disease as a killer of women that you can fight. Denial can be deadly. For more information, contact the American Heart Association.

COOKIE!!!!!!

trivia

Did you know:

More than one billion boxes of Girl Scout Cookies have been sold to date?

If placed end to end, they would circle the earth more than five times!

Cookie ingredients are measured in pounds and gallons for the dough. One batch of cookies may contain 800 pounds of flour, or enough to make 34,000 boxes of that type cookie!

The ovens in which the cookies are baked are approximately the length of football fields.

Raider Log

BY BETH BUCHANAN

Happy New Year!
Belated Happy New Year! After a great vacation and hopefully restful, everyone is back hard at work.

Meanwhile, has everyone kept his New Year's resolutions so far? Hope so.

Many students are finishing up papers, posters, and speeches for the Dr. Martin Luther King contest with entries due Friday, January 8. The contest's theme is "Living the Dream—Let Freedom Ring." Others are working on the Contemporary Issues essay competition, sponsored by the Palm Beach Post. These entries are due at the Post by January 29th. Topics include the influence of pop culture, Clinton's new administration, Christopher Columbus, and family values.

Some juniors are also busy completing their applications for the Discover Card Tribute Award (scholarship). This deadline is January 22nd. So, beyond regular classwork and bunches of athletic contests, everyone is busy.

January Calendar

Events

Mark the calendar for the following dates. First semester final exams begin January 15th for 4th period classes. January 18th there is no school to celebrate Martin Luther King's birthday.

On the 19th first and fifth period classes have exams, and the fall sports banquet is scheduled in the Annex cafeteria. Second and sixth periods have exams on the 20th, and the 21st ends the second nine weeks with third and seventh period exams.

January 22 is a teachers' work day. No school for the students.

Pathfinder Nominees

Senior nominees have been selected for the Palm Beach Post's Pathfinder awards. These profiles are also due in January with the personal interviews coming in March. Representing GCHS will be Stacey Webb in math; Colantha Wilson in science; Kenny Lutz in community service; Jaime Brown in business; Mark Crosbie in social studies; Glenda Hooker in art; Wilfred Ewan in drama; Eva Van Winkle in English; Sophia Hill in choral music; and Anthony Smith in instrumental music. Best of luck to these nominees.

Lady Raiders

Congratulations again to the Lady Raiders basketball team for their championship victory over Pompano Beach-Ely in the Treasure Lake Conference Christmas Tournament. A 44 - 32 score brought the win. Junior Shundra Smith was named MVP for the entire tournament.

Silver Cornet Band
Mr. Jack Daniel's Silver Cornet Band will perform at Dally Hand Cultural Arts Center Thursday, January 28, at 8 p.m.

The band is a recreation of an actual small-town band (Lynchburg, Tennessee, population 361) at the turn of the century.

In 1892, Mr. Jack Daniel decided his hometown needed a band, so he went out and bought a bunch of horns - Cornets, altoes, tenor, baritone, bass.

And a drum.

And some music.

Then, as the story goes, he passed all this stuff out around town.

And waited.

It must have taken some waiting, waiting for a band.

Especially since he gave the instruments and music to the blacksmiths and barbers and butchers and candlestick-makers that made up the town.

It takes a whole different bunch of muscles to blow a cornet than it does to shoe a mule, you see.

But the TV wasn't fixed yet, and there weren't any cars to go ridin' in yet, so they learned music.

In 1889, according to Harper's Weekly, there were more than 10,000 small-town bands in the U.S., and probably 10,000 more by the turn of the century.

What made the phenomenon work were the small-town audiences. Isolated as they were by slow travel and sparse communication, they paid rapt attention to every effort of their musicians.

And now, you can hear them. Don't miss this!

Everyone plays with a new partner each week. Come and bring a friend.

Now here's something...I'll bet you can't get on your satellite dish or your fancy cable. These fellows, Boat-Tailed Grackles, were seen last week taking a break from worm-digging duties, resting atop this television antenna at White's Plaza on Highway 715 in Belle Glade. They sat quietly for quite a while and suddenly all decided almost simultaneously to leave. They were last seen headed east. Maybe headed to the beach.

SUNPHOTO BY CHIP NEWTON

A drizzle of rain...wet the roads around Belle Glade enough to contribute to this one-vehicle accident on Duda Road just north of State Road 880 last Wednesday about 11 a.m. The driver of the truck, David Phillips, 52, apparently lost control in a turn. This is Mr. Phillips' fourteenth season driving for Sugar Cane Growers Cooperative of Florida, Inc. He received minor injuries and was treated and released from Glades General Hospital. Mr. Phillips was cited for failure to use due care by Florida Highway Patrol Trooper T.L. Smith.
